CANADIAN VOCALIST + SONGWRITER

BIOGRAPHY

Look Closer

I make pop music because I believe it can make uncomfortable emotions, the ones we instinctively close our eyes to, easier to face.

Canadian vocalist and songwriter Iain Mannix believes pop music can make uncomfortable emotions that we often avoid much easier to sit with and ultimately understand. Raised on musical theatre, he was rarely without a melody running through his head, and it was in watching musicals that he first fell in love with lyrical storytelling.

Upon meeting acclaimed electronic artist Veela, who recognized his innate musical sensibilities, she encouraged him to write and record original toplines for producers and DJs. Since then, Mannix has built an impressive collaborative pedigree, working across genres with a diverse roster of artists including Electro-Light, Keyboard Kid, Astra King, Electric Joy Ride, and Dan Bull.

Rather than writing in direct autobiography, he transforms his lived experience through visual metaphor.

Broken hearts are reimagined as overflowing candy jars, dead end relationships become cavity-riddled teeth, and profound despair transforms into an undeniable force that still pulls the listener to the dance floor. By creating enough distance through artifice, he hopes others can engage with emotions that they previously closed their eyes to.

Currently, Mannix is actively mining years of unreleased material, meticulously reworking old demos as he builds momentum toward his debut album. Simultaneously, he remains deeply embedded in his local community, accompanying and photographing regional performance artists while editing visual content for their social platforms and independent online publications. Across music, digital media, and live events, Iain Mannix extends a constant, open invitation to any observer: look into his world, or better yet, step inside.

MAY 1, 2026 / SINGLE + REMIX PROJECT

EVERY LITTLE STEP

feat. Vindit & dni

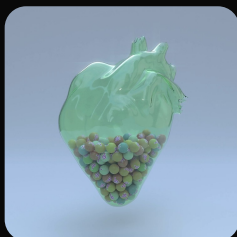

A dance anthem about long-distance relationships.

Every Little Step began as a rough demo I made with NOSLO, based on an idea I had recorded months earlier. At first, the concept was more of a life affirming anthem, built around the idea that since life is temporary, you might as well go for it.

Over the next three months, the song kept changing almost nonstop, shaped by a constant back and forth between everyone involved. Vindit and I were in it the deepest, rewriting and developing the track until it finally clicked. Collaborating from halfway around the world, the theme had been staring us in the face the whole time: distance, devotion, and the little steps we take toward each other.

Janghoon came in and helped rethink the verse melody, while dni tightened the bridge lyrics and added gorgeous background vocals. Everyone truly left their mark on the record.

Following its initial release, Every Little Step received four remixes, each offering a unique interpretation of the original song. Hardware Cop injected it with dynamic house beats, betilla delivered a melodious electronic rendition, NOSLO crafted an exclusive VIP mix, and Seth Nova reimagined it with a vibrant synth-pop flair inspired by the sounds of the 80s.
